Civil War Remembrance Weekend

Journey back in time to America in the 1860s as our nation is engaged in a massive civil war affecting lives across thousands of miles, from New Mexico to Tennessee and Vermont to Florida. Before it's over in April 1865, more than 3 million will have fought, and more than 750,000 will have died — the equivalent of 7.5 million dead today.

This year marks the sesquicentennial of 1863, the midpoint of the American Civil War and a pivotal year that witnessed implementation of the Emancipation Proclamation, great Union victories at Vicksburg and Gettysburg, and the beginning of the end of the Confederate States of America.

During this Memorial Day weekend, we invite you to become a part of living history as you travel through a microcosm of the Civil War. Union and Confederate reenactors, civilians, musicians and historic presenters — all in period attire — are eager to immerse you in this important American era. We hope you will be inspired by the array of exhibits, presentations, research opportunities, hands-on activities and insights from historians as you participate in the ultimate tribute to those who made the ultimate sacrifice.

The Henry Ford will participate in a national moment of silence on Monday at 3 p.m. as signaled by the Armington & Sims shop whistle.

As you enjoy your visit today, we ask you to join us in honoring the sacrifices and achievements of all those who have bravely fought and continue to fight in defense of our great nation.

SATURDAY EVENING CONCERT
featuring The Dodworth Saxhorn Band
America's premier 19th-century brass ensemble will perform a variety of music popular during the time of the Civil War. Town Hall/Village Green - Sat., 7:00-9:00
